GRC Policy Forum 2022

H.E. Dr. Nayef Falah M. Al-Hajraf, the secretary-general of the Gulf Cooperation Council, addresses participants of the GRC Policy Forum 2022.

The Gulf Research Center organized a policy forum at the Royal Society in London, England, on July 12, 2022, to address a range of policy issues related to the Gulf region. More than 60 participants including academics and members of think tanks attended the event.

The forum began with the welcoming remarks by H.E. Dr. Nayef Falah M. Al-Hajraf, the secretary-general of the Gulf Cooperation Council, virtually. His welcoming address can be found here.

The forum was then followed by a presentation of the Gulf Research Center Annual Strategic Review 2022, which outlined key regional developments of last year. The report's results were discussed in two panel sessions focusing on the current policy issues pertaining to the Gulf region. The GRC Annual Strategic Review can be found here.

The first panel, titled "Gulf Regional Politics, Security, and IR," was moderated by Dr. Sanam Vakil, deputy director and senior research fellows in the Middle East and North Africa Programme in Chatham House. Speakers of the first panel included Dr. Abdulaziz Sager, chairman of the Gulf Research Center, Dr. Mustafa Alani, the head of GRC's Defense and Security Program, and Dr. Christian Koch, the director of Research at the Gulf Research Center.

The experts discussed the regional security challenges and stressed the need to address those issues holistically. They were unanimous in their view that despite several difficulties, communication channels are needed for conflict management and de-escalation efforts to move the region out of crisis.

Moderated by Dr. Christian Koch, the director of Research at the GRC, the second panel was titled "Gulf Economics, Energy, and the Environment." Speakers at the second panel were: Dr. John Sfakianakis, the head of Economic Research and Chief Economist at the GRC. Prof. Giacomo Luciani, member of the board of trustees at the Gulf Research Center Foundation, and Dr. Mohammed Abdelraouf, head of the Environment Security and Sustainability Research Program at the GRC.

The second panel highlighted the Gulf countries' awakening to the realities of a global energy economy that is sensitive to climate change and focuses on decarbonization. The experts emphasized how the Gulf economies will have to find new sources of revenue or change their existing structures to boost productivity and less hydrocarbon intensive.

Annual Gulf Research Meeting 2022

Participants of the 2022 Gulf Research Meeting

The Gulf Research Center (GRC) hosted its 12th Annual Gulf Research Meeting (GRM) in Cambridge on July 14-16, 2022. More than 150 experts attended the conference in person and more than 80 participants joined them online. The event's participants were divided into 10 workshops overseen by 25 workshop directors. The workshops covered a host of issues related to the Gulf region ranging from international issues such as the role of the GCC countries and the Indo-Pacific to economic matters such as migration, tourism, energy transition, carbon neutrality and economic statecraft. The workshops also discussed social issues, education, role of women and humanitarian and development priorities. The Gulf Research Meeting seeks to hold academic meetings that lead to publications on topics related to social sciences with a focus on the Gulf region. More details on the meeting can be found on the GRM website.

The GRM opening ceremony was moderated by GRC Director of Research Dr. Christian Koch, and included welcoming remarks by Dr. Abdulaziz Sager, chairman of the GRC, and Prof. David Cardwell, pro-vice-chancellor for strategy and planning at the University of Cambridge. This was followed by speeches from H.E. Mr. Amin Awad, UN assistant secretary-general and UN crisis coordinator for Ukraine, and H.E. Prof. Einas Al-Eisa, president of Princess Nourah bint Abdulrahman University.

Mr. Awad outlined the effects of the Ukraine crisis, explaining that the crisis did not impact Ukraine alone but had a global impact, particularly on food, energy, economics, and security, specifically regarding the deployment of weapons of mass destruction. He suggested contingencies such as creating an alliance for food with countries that have the ability to produce food such as grains.

Prof. Al-Eisa explained how the Saudi Vision 2030 was transforming the lives of Saudi women and empowering them across all sectors, specifically health, education, sports, and politics. The academic also explained the impacts of COVID-19 on the education sector.

The opening ceremony concluded with a panel discussion of the keynote speakers and a Q&A session.

Evaluating the Impact of President Biden's Visit to the Middle East

July 22, 2022

Organizers:

Evaluating the Impact of President Biden's Visit to the Middle East

On July 22, 2022, the National Council and the Gulf Research Center hosted an online briefing program looking back at US President Joe Biden's visit to the Middle East with stops in Israel, the occupied Palestinian territories, and Saudi Arabia. The Saudi and US analysts, scholars, and former diplomats assessed the impact of the trip on near-term developments as well as longer-term strategic trends. The program's featured specialists were Dr. Abdulaziz Sager, Gulf Research Center founder and chairman, former US diplomat Ambassador (Retd) Michael Gfoeller, and Mr. David H. Rundell. Col. (Retd) Abbas K. Dahouk and Dr. John Duke Anthony joined them for the proceedings as moderator and context provider, respectively.

Gulf Research Center Foundation MoU with the Osaka School of International Public

Policy - Osaka University

Osaka University's campus

OSSIP Osaka School of International Public Policy building

The Gulf Research Center signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the Osaka School of International Public Policy, Osaka University, Japan. The objective of the MoU is to promote cooperation in the fields of education and academic research, including a) activities such as collaborative research, lectures, symposiums, and the associated exchange of researchers; and b) exchange of information and materials in a variety of fields, including sustainable development goals (SDGs) and environmental, social, and governance (ESG) integration research and education.

GRC Japan Branch

In addition to the MoU signed with Osaka University, which will enable progress on a variety of joint projects, especially SDGs and NPT-related (Non-Proliferation Treaty) issues between Japan/East Asia and the Gulf states, the GRC's Japan branch continued work on several other initiatives. One of those projects is the development of a Japanese company database in the UAE and Saudi Arabia to enhance the GCC and East Asia relations. In connection, GRC's recently appointed summer intern, Ms. Shahad Turkistani, focused her efforts on examining potential opportunities in the new era of Saudi-Japan relations in the context of Saudi Arabia's Vision 2030.

On behalf of GRC, Ms. Noriko Suzuki attended two Japanese semi-governmental study groups as a speaker at specialized group sessions. The key topics covered Japan's national security, particularly with regards to future defense requirements in the light of the perception of growing China/Russia threats. On July 21, Ms. Suzuki attended a panel discussion focusing on the Japanese media security. The participants discussed ways to prevent the spread of disinformation within Japanese communities. It was led by Mr. Michiro Kato, who is a journalist and policy analyst. This monthly seminar is called "Shoheijyuku" and is funded and chaired by Japanese businessman Mr. Toshiya Motoya. On July 25, Ms. Suzuki also participated in a sub-committee of the National Security and Crisis Management national defense security council. The main subjects discussed included the expanding threat of China and Russia's collaboration in both military and economic fields and a possible China-Taiwan conflict and its implications for the South Pacific Ocean region.

Dr. Abdulaziz Sager Awarded Guest Professorship at Osaka University

Dr. Abdulaziz O. Sager, chairman of GRC, GRCF, has been appointed as a Guest Professor of OSSIP (Osaka School of International Public Policy), the graduate school of Osaka University- OSIPP.

OSIPP was established in 1994 as a place where various public policy issues can be addressed through interdisciplinary research, education, and social contribution. It aims to engage in state-of-the-art research on the global and strategic implications of a wide range of public policy areas and provide appropriate training for international leaders dedicated to working for the public good. With the recent establishment of the ESG Integration Research and Education Center (ESG-IREC), we are expanding the scope of our research and education to include identifying innovative solutions to public policy issues to build a more peaceful and sustainable future.

This guest professorship is internationally recognized as a prestigious position. Osaka University only appoints high achievers within the academic world and those individuals who have contributed significantly to global politics, economics, peace, human rights, and SDG's humanitarian activities. As a "goodwill" position, the role does not carry any specific commitments or obligations, and it takes a maximum term of 3 years, being reviewed by both parties annually.

Given the current economic and political challenges facing many countries, the relationship between Japan and the Gulf Region has become increasingly important. Therefore, Osaka University and OSIPP look forward to enhancing their collaborative academic activities and achievements in the many fields where their interests overlap.

The Gulf Research Center produces a wide variety of publications through its research programs, projects, and Gulf Research Meetings. The GRC's publications can be accessed on its website via this link, and the commentary and analysis can be found here
